

Using the Hoopla website to read e-books

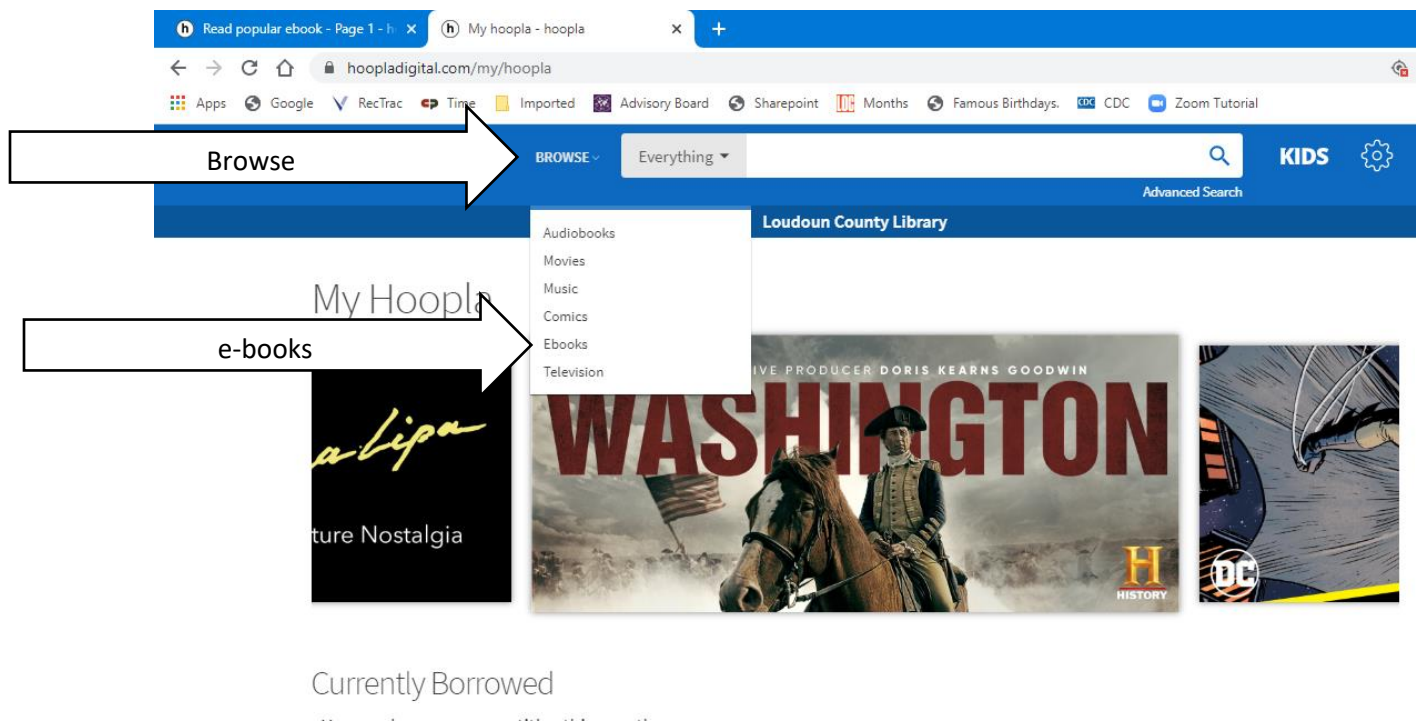

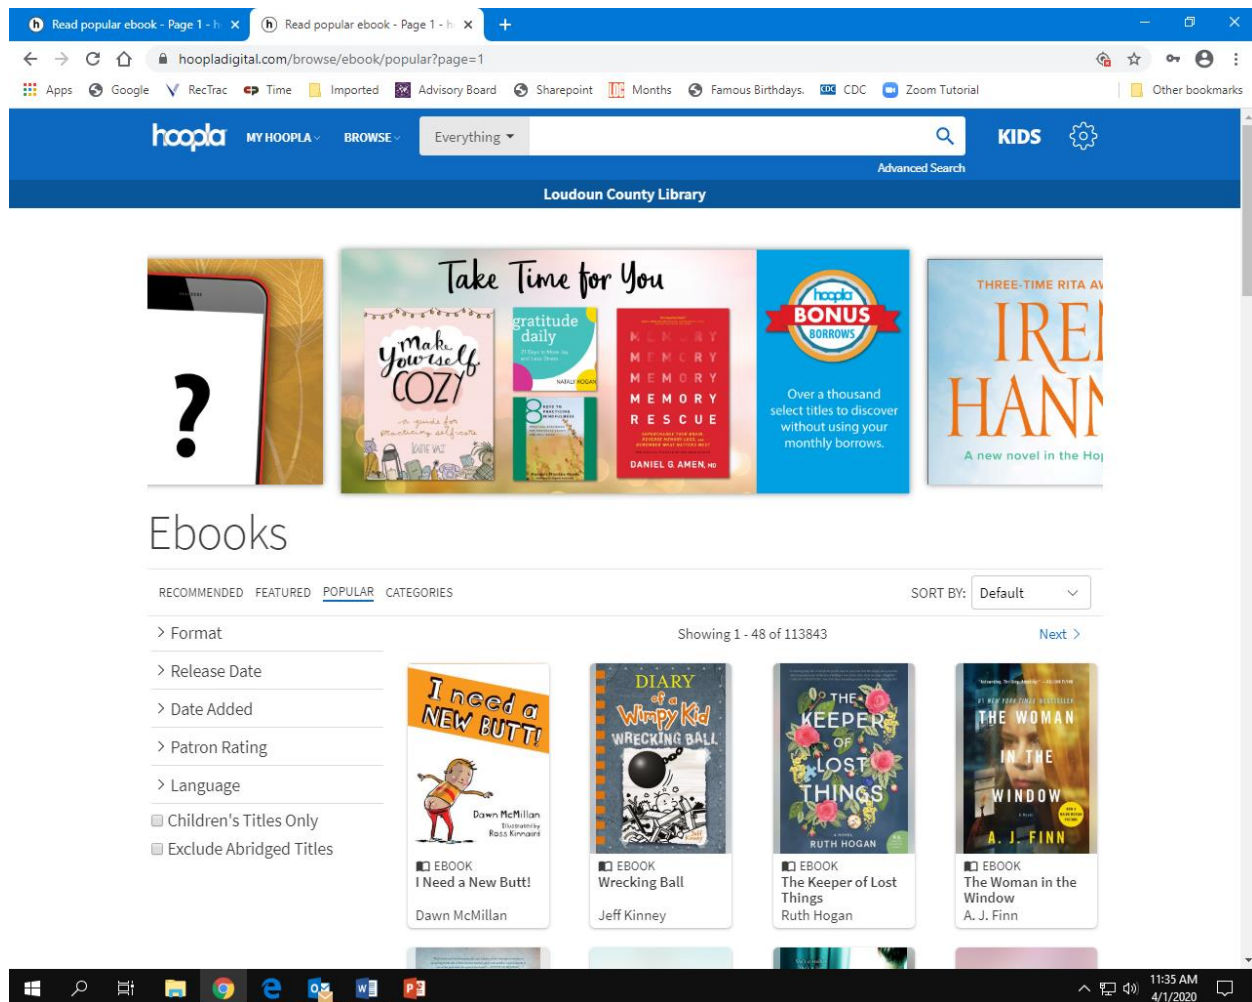

- 1) Go to the Hoopla website (hoopladigital.com) for free e-books to read on your computer. You will need a Loudoun County Library card and a current email address (no money, no credit cards!!). If you do not have a Loudoun County library card, you can call the Loudoun County library help desk (which is still operational) at 703-777-0323. They will help you get one.
- 2) Click on the “Get Started today” box in the middle of the page.

The image shows a web form titled "Your Info" with a blue checkmark icon and a close button (X) in the top right corner. The form contains four input fields: "Email", "Confirm email", "Password (8-40 characters)", and "Confirm password". Below the fields is a line of text: "By clicking agree, you are agreeing to our terms and conditions and our privacy policy." Below this text is a link: "Already have an account? Log in". At the bottom right of the form is a blue button labeled "AGREE".

- 3) Create your free account with hoopla by putting in your email address. You will need to make up a password for your Hoopla account.
- 4) You will then be asked for your Library Card number which is on the back of your library card. You will also need to enter your Library Card password which is your birthdate. Please enter your birth date using 6 digits only. For example, if you were born on September 4, 1950, your password would be 090450.

- 5) This will create your “My Hoopla” page. It will keep track of the books you read and give you suggestions based on what books you choose.
- 6) Go to the “Browse” tab and click on “Ebooks”. This will take you to a page where you will see all your ebook choices.

7) Above is the “Ebooks” page. You can search for e-books in a number of ways. You then click on the book you want to read. For example, “The Woman in the Window”.

The screenshot shows a web browser window with the URL hoopladigital.com/title/12704456. The page is for the book "The Woman In The Window" by A. J. Finn, published in 2018. The book cover is displayed on the left, and the right side contains a synopsis and genre tags. A large arrow labeled "borrow" points to the "BORROW" button, which is highlighted in blue. Below the button, it says "This title is available for 21 days after you borrow it. This title is available for streaming and downloading (mobile devices only)." The page also includes a rating section with 5 stars and 174 reviews, and a quote from Louise Penny.

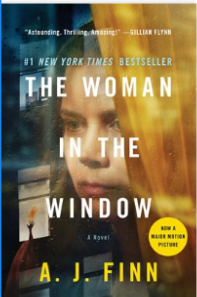

Read popular ebook - Page 1 - 1 x The Woman in the Window Ebook x

hoopla MY HOOPLA BROWSE Everything KIDS Advanced Search

Loudoun County Library

The Woman In The Window 2018

HARPERCOLLINS ENGLISH 464 PRINT PAGES

by A. J. Finn

A Novel

Instant #1 New York Times Bestseller!

For readers of Gillian Flynn and Tana French comes one of the decade's most anticipated debuts, to be published in thirty-six languages around the world and already in development as a major film from Fox: a twisty, powerful Hitchcockian thriller about an agoraphobic woman who believes she witnessed a crime in a neighboring house.

...

SEE MORE

Fiction → Thrillers → Psychological
Fiction → Thrillers → Suspense
Fiction → Thrillers → Crime

RATE THIS TITLE

★★★★★ (174)

BORROW

This title is available for 21 days after you borrow it. This title is available for streaming and downloading (mobile devices only).

"The Woman in the Window is a tour de force. A twisting, twisted odyssey inside one woman's mind, her illusions, delusions, reality. It left my own mind reeling and my heart pounding. An absolutely gripping thriller."
- Louise Penny, #1 New York Times bestselling author

"There's something irresistible about this made-for-the-movies tingler. Finn knows how to pleurably wind us up."
- USA Today

Windows taskbar: 11:36 AM 4/1/2020

- 8) Once you click on the e-book you want, this page will pop up. It will give you a story summary, and how long you will be able to read the book. If you want to read the e-book, click on the “borrow” tab.

Read popular ebook - Page 1 - h... x

Reading The Woman in the Wind... x

hoopladigital.com/play/12704456

Apps Google RecTrac Time Imported Advisory Board Sharepoint Months Famous Birthdays CDC Zoom Tutorial Other bookmarks

x close

The Woman in the Window

Tr Q ≡

1

HER HUSBAND'S ALMOST HOME. He'll catch her this time.

There isn't a scrap of curtain, not a blade of blind, in number 212—the rust-red townhome that once housed the newlywed Motts, until recently, until they un-wed. I never met either Mott, but occasionally I check in online: his LinkedIn profile, her Facebook page. Their wedding registry lives on at Macy's. I could still buy them flatware.

As I was saying: not even a window dressing. So number 212 gazes blankly across the street, ruddy and raw, and I gaze right back, watching the mistress of the manor lead her contractor into the guest bedroom. What is it about that house? It's where love goes to die.

She's lovely, a genuine redhead, with grass-green eyes and an archipelago of tiny moles trailing across her back. Much prettier than her husband, a Dr. John Miller, psychotherapist—yes, he offers couples counseling—and one of 436,000 John Millers online. This particular specimen works near Gramercy Park and does not accept insurance. According to the deed of sale, he paid $3.6 million for his house. Business must be good.

I know both more and less about the wife. Not much of a homemaker, clearly; the Millers moved in eight weeks ago, yet still those windows are bare, tsk-tsk. She practices yoga three times a week, tripping down the steps with her magic-carpet mat rolled beneath one arm, legs shrink-wrapped in Lululemon. And she must volunteer someplace—she leaves the house a little past eleven on Mondays and Fridays, around the time I get up, and returns between five and five thirty, just as I'm settling in for my nightly film. (This evening's selection: The Man Who Knew Too Much, for the umpteenth time. I am the woman who viewed too much.)

I've noticed she likes a drink in the afternoon, as do I. Does she also like a drink in the morning? As do I?

But her age is a mystery, although she's certainly younger than Dr. Miller, and younger than me (nimbler, too); her name I can only guess at. I think of her as Rita, because she looks like Hayworth in Gilda. "I'm not in the least interested"—love that line.

I myself am very much interested. Not in her body—the pale ridge of her spine, her shoulder blades like stunted wings, the baby-blue bra clasping her breasts: whenever these loom within my lens, any of them, I look away—but in the life she leads. The lives. Two more than I've got.

Her husband rounded the corner a moment ago, just past noon, not long after his wife pressed the front door shut, contractor in tow. This is an aberration: On Sundays, Dr. Miller returns to the house at quarter past three, without fail.

Yet now the good doctor strides down the sidewalk, breath chugging from his mouth, briefcase swinging from one hand, wedding band winking. I zoom in on his feet: oxblood oxfords, slick with polish, collecting the autumn sunlight, kicking it off with each step.

I lift the camera to his head. My Nikon D5500 doesn't miss much, not with that Opteka lens: unruly marled hair, glasses spindly and cheap, islets of stubble in the shallow ponds of his cheeks. He takes better care of his shoes than his face.

Back to number 212, where Rita and the contractor are speedily disrobing. I could dial directory assistance, call the house, warn her. I won't. Watching is like nature photography: You don't interfere with the wildlife.

Dr. Miller is maybe half a minute away from the front door. His wife's mouth glosses the contractor's neck. Off with her blouse.

Four more steps. Five, six, seven. Twenty seconds now, at most.

She seizes his tie between her teeth, grins at him. Her hands fumble with his shirt. He grazes on her ear.

Her husband hops over a buckled slab of sidewalk. Fifteen seconds.

I can almost room.

Ten seconds. I zoom in again, the snout of the camera practically twitching. His hand dives into his pocket, surfaces with a haul of keys. Seven seconds.

She unlooses her ponytail, hair swinging onto her shoulders.

Three seconds. He mounts the steps.

She folds her arms around his back, kisses him deep.

He stabs the key into the lock. Twists.

I zoom in on her face, the eyes sprung wide. She's heard.

I snap a photo.

And then his briefcase flops open.

A flock of papers bursts from it, scatters in the wind. I jolt the camera back to Dr. Miller, to the crisp "Shoot" his mouth shapes; he sets the briefcase on the stoop, stamps a few sheets beneath those glinting shoes, scoops others into his arms. One tearaway scrap has snagged in the fingers of a tree. He doesn't notice.

Rita again, plunging her arms into her sleeves, pushing her hair back. She speeds from the room. The contractor, marooned, hops off the bed and retrieves his tie, stuffs it into his pocket.

report an error

Calculating Pages

Windows taskbar icons: File Explorer, Google Chrome, Microsoft Edge, Outlook, Word, PowerPoint, etc.

11:38 AM 4/1/2020

9) Clicking on the borrow button will bring you to the e-book. You click on the arrows to page forward and backward. When you want to put the book down for come back later, you can click the “close book” tab the book will be saved in your “My Hoopla”.

You are ready to go!!